UNION DEPOT TOO SMALL

Georgetown Streets Will Be Oc. PURE AIR, cupied by Railway Companies.

FULL WARNING WAS GIVEN

Only Sufficient Room in the Building to Store the Cars and for Companies Offices-Old Citizens Even Now Terribly Annoyed by the Noise of Mak ing Up Trains.

Georgetown has had warning of an additional burden to bear in the interests of the street railway companies under the blind of service to the public Four months ago Mr. George Hill, jr., the paper manufacturer, who has been a business man in Georgetown over sixty years, called the attention of the Commissioners to the fact that the site of the proposed Union Station at Thirty-sixth and M streets, is too small for the purposes for which it should be in-

Last week the Commissioners were so far awakened to the fact that a few lines got into the papers calling attention to the conditions which will exist at the Georgetown nus of the great street railway lines when the new station is completed. It may justly be expected to be very much worse than is now experienced anywhere in the city. It is the policy of the great transportation companies, to whom exclusive privileges which constitute them monopolies have been given, to add to what has been granted all they can seize and hold.

STREETS MONOPOLIZED The railway companies take the streets or car yards and the street car companies occupy the middle of the street for making p and starting their trains without any preuse of providing themselves with sheds or tense of providing themselves with sheds or stables for the purpose.

This has arisen largely from the fact that originally the street cars were drawn by horses and only one car at a time stood in the street obstracting the way while it waited its time to start. But now it is not one car, it is six and eight at a time. The single car has been re-placed by trains each of two or three cable cars, each car being as large as two horse cars. horse cars.

The public inconvenience by this encroachment is keenly felt at the termint of the Washington and Georgetown Company at Thirty-second and M. on Fourteenth street at Mi. Pleasaut, and on Eighth street hear the navy yard, a little less at the N. O. drong where the company has been near the navy yard, a little less at the B & O depot, where the company has been obliged by the Metropolitan cars to take the side of the street.

The lot upon which excavation is in progress at Thirry-sixth and M for the union station, which is to be completed in September, but may not be, is about 160 feet on Prospect avenue, by 150 feet on Thirry-sixth street. It is expected to accommodate about fifty cars of the Washington and Georgetown road, about as many more of the Metropolitan, as well as to have room for other roads that may come ive room for other roads that may come a from the suburbs that are rapidly grow-ng northwest of the city. In addition to this there are to be in the station of-dices of the company and waiting rooms

MR. HILL'S GRIEVANCE. Mr. Hill, who first called the Commis-doners' attention to the matter, lives within twenty feet of where the cable cars now stop in Georgetown. He said

o a Times reporter:
To appreciate what goes on here it is ecessary to sit on my front veranda here or an hour when the road is at it busiest. Phere is a continuous rattle of chains and claugor of iron as the cars are shifted. It seleven years since I have been able to take reakfast with my family on account of this hing. I can not get to sleep usually till offer the cars stop running, at 1 o'clock, in he morning and, of course, I cannot be up the morning and, or course, I cannot be up a the morning and. a the morning at the time people generally

'I was in Jersey City a few days since ad stopped at a hotel near which seven ir lines had their terminus and all com-med did not make as much noise as this one less. The difference was that they had rovided proper terminal facilities and made their trains in the house. In every other y of any size in the world the cars go into car shed at one entrance, are made up in costs a little something for ground to put he sheds on, but there is plenty of room there the station is located and the ground st west of the present site of the depot

"I am one of the oldest citizens of Washngton, have always been useful and it sems to me I do not deserve such trent-I'm sare I've never done anything

The prospect is that the streets at the and Georgetown and the Metropolitan road and teergetown and the Metropolitan road making up their trains outside the sheds, will be almost impossable. It is the listory of such encreachments that nothing is said about what is proposed until the work is finished and the exaction of additional tribute from the common property is firmly taken hold of.

If the appropriation of the public space is foreseen, fair promises are made and under cover of them nearly everything wanted is taken.

Sharp Words Between Counsel in the Desmond-Auffort Trial.

MR. BIRNEY TAKEN TO TASK

Accused of Having Mislead Counsel for the Defense, but Denies the Imputation-Judge Cole Straightens the Matter Out-Ferry Company's Strong Boxes Found in the River.

As foreshadowed by The Times there was a sharp interchange between counsel when the indictment against Desmond and Auffort was called for trial before Judge Cole yesterday, Colonel William Cook led off with a statement that Mr. Birney had agreed to try the indictments against Patterson, Wells and Auffort during June. He had writ-ten to Mr. Birney asking that a hearing might be commenced on Wednesday, June 26, of the indictment No. 20,309 against Autfort for "larceny." This last word was a typewriter's mistake for the word "arson." There was then no indictment against Auffort for Jarency, and Mr. Birney knew that Col. Cook's firm was not counsel in the case of the Washington Steamboat Company burglary.

Mr. Birney had ostensibly agreed to the request and yet, taking advantage of the typewriter's slip, had surprised counsel in both cases by suddenly cauting new in-dictments to be returned in the burglary cases and setting them for trial the day after they were returned. Such action, he said, was "unfair, unjust and unbecoming," and he believed it was taken for the purpose of depriving the defense of the advantage of certain affidavits.

LIPSCOMB CORROBORATES COOK Messrs, A. A. Lipscomb, Charles Bend-eim, and ex-Congressman Turner were heim, and ex-Congressman Turner were present to represent the defense in the two cases. Mr. Lipscomb immediately followered Col. Cook. He represented Auffort in the burglary case. He said to had exactly the same understanding as Col. Cook and he had been hard at work preparing for the arson case and was not at all ready for the burglary trial. Witnesses for the defense necessary to the trial must be brought from Ohio and Virginia. He asked for a continuance till next fall.

Judge Cole overruled the motion, and Mr. Lipscomb noted an exception.

Judge Cole overrailed the motion, and Mr. Lipscomb noted an exception.

Mr. Birney explained that he had understood Mr. Cook to mean that the barglary case was the one the defense would be ready for. He thought the flumber and not the word "larceny" was the error. There was nothing in the fact that new indictments had been obtained, except that the men were now jointly indicted and could be tried together.

Mr. Lipscomb said he thought it a hardship on him. "Because Col. Cook fell down," he said, "and toppled Mr. Birney over, is no reason why Mr. Birney should knock me over. But I impute no bad faith knock me over. But I impute no bad faith to Mr. Birney." he continued.

"Well, I do," interrupted Col. Cook, "and base my belief on facts. Mr. Birney agreed to call one case to-day, and he has called another."

JUDGE COLE'S DECISION Judge Cole said be had understood Mr. Mr. Birney to say while the Howgate case would hear the burglary ase first, and then the arson case He had however, set no case for the day. He would bear the burglary case to morrow. This would give time for the witnesses to reach bere by the time they were needed. The arsencese could be taken up Monday, when a jury could be got out of the June panel and Ex-Congressman Turner's motion for postponement of the burglary case to Saturday was overruled, and be noted an exception. Mr. Lipscomb them withdrew the plea of not guilty for Auffort and Desmond and of not guity for Autiont and Desmond and filed a demurrer on the ground that "lar-ceny" is not a statutory crime here and that the ownership of the property is not stated in the indictment. The demurrer was overreuled, and the trial will begin this motning. Detectives Weedon and Horn took Williams, the accomplice of Auf-fort and Desmond, who is the principal witness against them, across the Potomac yesterday, and by the help of several divers found the two strong boxes of the steamboat company's safe. They were near the river wall, opposite the ferry wharf, where williams said Auffort, Desmond, and he had thrown them after the job was done. A number of valuable papers, checks, etc., of the company were recovered. The discovery is strongly corroborative of Williams' story.
